

Darlene Yaplee

Co-founder and President, Aviation-Impacted Communities Alliance

Darlene Yaplee is a Co-Founder of the Aviation-Impacted Communities Alliance (AICA) and Concerned Residents of Palo Alto. Darlene brings 25+ years of experience including Chief Marketing Officer and Vice President positions at Fortune 500, high-technology companies where she led strategic alliances, international marketing, and new market development. She was the Chief Marketing Officer at PLOS, a nonprofit Open Access Science publisher and advocacy organization where she promoted the understanding and adoption of Open Access with organizations such as Google, the Wellcome Trust, and Research Universities. Darlene was the University of California, Davis Alumni Commencement speaker and recipient of Sun Microsystems "Business Woman of the Year" Award and YWCA "Tribute to Women" Award. She has guest lectured at Stanford Graduate School of Business and Santa Clara University.